Figure 2. Greenhouse Gas Emissions by Source
CALIFORNIA, 2017

Californians Must Drive Less

A just-released report from Next10 and Beacon Economics is a "blunt warning" that California has to pick up the pace on emissions reductions. Transportation is not the only sector that is failing to reduce emissions, but it is a big one – it accounts for more than forty percent of the state's total greenhouse gas emissions. And trends go in the wrong direction.

We Pit The Uber Copter Vs. Public Transit In A Race To JFK — Here's Who Won

One is a bumpy, deafening and slightly nauseating way to get to John F. Kennedy Airport — the other is public transportation. The Post put Uber's new helicopter shuttle to JFK to the test, racing the car-sharing company and its chopper from Midtown to the hub against old-fashioned New York City Transit.

Insights into Why and How Cities are Planning for Autonomous Vehicles Webinar Friday, October 18, 2019 from 11 am to 12 pm Pacific

Autonomous vehicles are being widely tested and piloted to carry passengers and freight. When these vehicles will be deployed more broadly and integrated into our current transportation system is debatable. However, a handful of cities across the nation are starting to incorporate autonomous vehicles into policy conversations and planning activities. These "early adopter" cities are providing insight into the evolving role local policy may have in shaping AV use and deployment in communities.

This free webinar will feature a presentation from UC Berkeley Professor Daniel Chatman featuring new research exploring the motivation of "early adopter" cities engaged in autonomous vehicle testing, regulation, and planning. Professor Chatman will share high-level findings and insights from over 20 in-depth interviews and an extensive review of policy and planning documents. He will also discuss the implications of this research on future autonomous vehicle policy making at varying levels of government.

Student Transportation Consulting Volunteer Opportunity University of Southern California

Please see the following on behalf of USC undergraduate Reanne Aquinde: Reanne is looking to organize student members of the USC Chapter of the Institute of Industrial and Systems Engineers (IISE) to undertake transportation related problems in the field. Interested students need not already be a part of IISE but should attend or live near USC. This opportunity is intended to organize a small, voluntary student team which will then tackle a real world project that students can work on to gain practical experience. Email Reanne for more information at raqinde@usc.edu

Scholarships & Academic Opportunities

Become a Presidential Management Fellow
Applications Due: Thursday, October 17, 2019 at 9 am Pacific

The Presidential Management Fellows (PMF) Program is administered by the U.S. Office of Personnel Management (OPM). Each year, candidates apply to the program in efforts to be selected as Finalists. Finalists are then eligible for appointment as Presidential Management Fellows (Fellows; PMFs).

To become a PMF, you must participate in an rigorous, multi-hurdle process. It takes patience and endurance, but also gives you a chance to demonstrate your leadership ability and potential. As a PMF, you will have earned your place in the program, and the opportunity to grow professionally, serve your country, and make a difference!
