Webinar - Internet Deliveries to Households, and Deliveries to Businesses: Impacts on Cities and Solution Approaches

Wednesday, December 18, 2019 at 8 am Pacific

Online

Dr. Holguin-Veras and Dr. Wang from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute (RPI) will discuss how the Internet economy has put at consumers’ fingertips an array of consumer goods without precedent in human history; in doing so, the business-to-consumer (B2C) component of the Internet economy has increased market transparency making it easier for consumers to find suppliers and vice versa. The freight traffic generated, in turn, has aggravated congestion, pollution, and accidents.

In this talk, Professors José Holguín-Veras and Cara Wang will discuss their research on these topics and will outline potential solution approaches to deal with this crisis.
